Excursion Ends Gathering of Southern Railway Physi- cians.

As a pleasant finale to the meeting of the Association of Surgeons of the Southern Railway here this week, a delightful trip on the steamer Brandon was tendered to the visiting members yesterday by the local members of the association. The boat went as far as Westover, but was unable to make a landing. This caused great regret, for Mrs. Ramsey, owner of that beautiful old plantation, had granted permission of association to visit the place. The favor was due to the fact that Mrs. Ramsey wished to extend this courtesy to the friends and professional brethren of Dr. J. A. Hodges, her family physician.

The trip was a very pleasant one and the crew were refreshments galore and members' campers' backs itchy.

One of the most interesting incidents of this convention was a meeting between Dr. George Ross, of this city and Dr. Julius H. Taylor, of Columbia. They said that the luncheon was the best ever. Polk Miller and his negro quartet were along and they entertained the visitors immensely.

Nearly all of the members remained over for the trip. President-elect C. Day and the past president, Dr. Charles F. Starkel, were of the party. Many of the local physicians were on board, and they did all in their power to make the trip a fine one. They succeeded.

Business was transacted, as the convention adjourned late on Wednesday. Most of the visiting members left for their homes last night.

Dr. Ross overheard Dr. Taylor, who is one of the most prominent physicians in South Carolina, despite the fact that he is a very young man yet, say that he was going to vote for Dr. Day a president of the association on account of the fact that Dr. Day had been a comrade of his father, Dr. B. W. Taylor, in the Confederate medical service. It happened that Dr. Ross was closely associated with Dr. B. W. Taylor in the war, and he warmly greeted the son of his old friend, recalling many things about the father of the young man.

Committee of Chamber of Commerce Will Hold Meeting To-Day.

It is presumed that the committee will take up and consider the opinion of the subcommittee of the Committee on Streets to the effect that the plan of the Mayo's Bridge property is not feasible. While the Chamber of Commerce is in favor of the bridge, on this matter, the consolidation committee stands in existence, being held together until the consummation of the transaction which Manchester became a part of Richmond. This, of course, involves the commercial interests of the city in the construction of a highway across the James River.

Opinion is understood to be divided as to the price put on the Mayo property. The option expires on May 3.

Discussion Unwieldy. J. C. Freeman said he realized it might be awkward to have a discussion at this time of the reasons for selling the property, and that for his part he was willing to agree in whatever decision should be made by the committee, so great was his confidence in its judgment and patriotism. He thereafter acquiesced the resolution.
